INFO CORNER

BREAKING NEWS ON VITAMIN D

Research done at Harvard University recently concluded that men with low levels of Vit. D are more than twice as likely to die from heart disease or suffer a heart attack than men who have what’s considered sufficient levels in their blood.

Plus, Vit. D enhances the absorption of calcium and is critical for strong bones.

The recommended dose per day use to be 400 IU, but even the American Academy of Pediatrics recommends doubling that amount. Many experts feel adults should get 1000 IU and some even suggest higher levels, particularly during winter months.

My daughter Kira and I will be flying down to visit my husband Wade during her Spring break from April 13th-19th. My client’s will remain on their current schedules.

You will be notified in advance should Michelle or Mike have any conflicts. Thank you for your flexibility and understanding.
